Elizabeth, a resident of Mecklenburg County, has been living in the Westside area for seven years with her four children: Eli, Emanuel, Emira, and Ethan. As a family, they enjoy going to the movies and eating ice cream, especially at Dairy Queen. Elizabeth enjoys shopping, dressing up, and writing poetry in her free time. Elizabeth learned about Habitat's homebuyer program from a friend. Although she was initially denied, she didn't give up. She found a better-paying job, worked on her credit, and then applied again through Money Matters, eventually getting accepted into the program. Money Matters also helped her understand more about the Homebuyer program and how to improve herself to reach her goals. During her homeowner-in-process journey, Elizabeth enjoyed using her carpentry skills to help build houses and work in the ReStores, where she found a passion for organizing. She credits Habitat's program for helping her save money for a rainy day and the down payment for Habitat's move-in. Affordable housing is crucial for Elizabeth, allowing her to save for her family's future. She also has plans to start her own flower business in memory of her children's father. Elizabeth is so grateful for Habitat and wants everyone to know that she believes the routine of life is nothing compared to the fulfillment of hard work for what you want in your life.
